Administrative history / Biographical sketch

Note

Frances Wasserlein is a feminist, historian and social activist. Her research and social activism has focused on issues surrounding women's liberation. She completed a Master of Arts degree in history at Simon Fraser University in 1990. Her thesis, "An Arrow Aimed at the Heart": the Vancouver Women's Caucus and the Abortion Campaign, 1969-1971, investigated the history of the Vancouver Women's Caucus (VWC) and their organizing work for the Abortion Caravan from Vancouver to Ottawa in 1970.

Wasserlein was raised in Vancouver. She graduated from the University Program at Little Flower Academy in 1964. Wasserlein acknowledges becoming a feminist in 1976. At the time she was working as a secretary at the University of British Columbia (UBC). Her involvement with the union, and a summer job working at Vancouver Rape Relief contributed to an interest in social justice and social change. In April 1977 she left her job at UBC and began full time undergraduate studies at that university. She completed a BA (honors) in history in 1980.

During the summer of 1979 Wasserlein worked as a researcher for the Women's Office at UBC on a project related to the early contributions of women to the establishment of UBC and the role women played in student activism at the university. In 1979 and 1980 she worked with a small group of women to begin Battered Women's Support Services, providing self-help groups for women who were seeking an end to the violence that had driven them and their children from their homes.

After receiving her BA from UBC, Wasserlein worked for the YMCA as a co-manager of Munro House for eighteen months. Following that, she worked as a researcher and writer with the Women's Research Centre, working on studies related to the institutionalization of women's services. She supplemented her income by doing bookkeeping for various arts and non-profit organizations. Wasserlein worked on founding Women Against Violence Against Women (WAVAW) in 1982. She was also involved in the work of Women Against the Budget in 1983, a political group opposed to the legislation tabled by the Social Credit government following their victory in the 1983 provincial election.

Her interest in the source of conflict between and among individual women activists, and between and among women's organizations, motivated her to seek out the source of these conflicts by examining the history of women's movements in Canada. In 1982, she applied for a Canada Council grant for a women's history project she wished to undertake. The grant application was turned down. In 1985 she enrolled in a Master of Arts degree program in history at Simon Fraser University. After completing her MA, Wasserlein taught women's studies at Langara College in Vancouver, BC until 1997. She has also worked as a sessional instructor at SFU. As of 2002, she was employed as the executive producer of the Vancouver Folk Music Festival.

Scope and content

The fonds consists primarily of records created during the writing of Wasserlein's MA thesis at SFU, "An Arrow Aimed at the Heart": the Vancouver Women's Caucus and the Abortion Campaign, 1969-1971, completed in 1990. The fonds also contains records related to other research Wasserlein was involved in, specifically her work with the UBC research project on non-academic women in 1979, and her application for a Canada Council grant in support of her own research project in 1982. Fonds includes taped interviews, transcripts, notes, drafts, correspondence, published materials, periodicals, and photographs. No records exist related to Wasserlein's activities with the Vancouver Folk Music Festival.

Notes

Title notes

- Source of title proper: Title of the fonds is based on the name of the creator.

Immediate source of acquisition

Contents of the fonds were donated to the SFU Archives by Frances Wasserlein.

Arrangement

Original order was maintained where possible. In cases where no order was apparent, the archivist imposed an arrangement.

Restrictions on access

Some files may contain personal or confidential information. Access to cassette interviews and transcripts is restricted until 2045, as stipulated by Archives policy or the donor. Files marked 'pending review' must be reviewed by an archivist prior to release, and as a result of the review access restrictions may apply. Please see the file lists and consult the archivist for more details.

Finding aids

Series descriptions and file and item lists are available.

Sub-series F-162-3-2: Interviews

Date: 1986 - 1987 (date of creation)

Scope and content:

Sub-series consists of records related to interviews conducted by Wasserlein with members of the Vancouver Women's Caucus. The sub-series contains tape recorded interviews, interview transcripts, correspondence with interview subjects, a notebook, and reference copies of the interview cassettes created by the archives.

Physical description: 13 cm of textual records
19 sound recordings

Note:

Physical description: sub-series includes 70 audio cassettes (originals and copies); as of October 2012, none of the recordings have been digitized.
General note: there is no sound recording for one of the interviews (Hellen Potrebenko).

Arrangement:

Files are arranged alphabetically by interviewee. The sound recordings of the interviews are linked via the reference code to the paper file containing transcripts and other textual records.

Restrictions on access:

Access to cassette interviews and transcripts is restricted to protect the privacy of the interviewees as stipulated in the donation agreement between the donor and the Archives. Restrictions expire January 1, 2045. Prior to this date, the Archives will provide access only under the terms and conditions of a Research Agreement; consult the reference archivist for more information.

For preservation reasons, access to the sound recordings is restricted due to the age and fragility of the cassettes. The Archives will provide access only through digitization of the originals. As of October 2012, no interviews have been digitized. Consult the reference archivist for more information about accessing the sound recordings.
