Discussion Topics:

A descriptive study of the First Nations cultures of Canada, as they were at the time of initial contact with Europeans. Topics will be covered on a culture area basis. Each area will be discussed on terms of languages, population, early post contact history and its impact on traditional life ways. Detailed aspects discussed include ethnographic descriptions of economics, social and political organization, ceremony and religion and warfare. These topics will be explored in a number of current day case studies of archaeological research.
